Aristocrat Commando Invades St.-Tropez

For Wedding

Of the Son of

A Hairdresser

By Hebe Dorsey SAINT TROPEZ, France, May 24.—The small fishing village of Saint-Tropez, was invaded yesterday by an aristocratic commando, led by Princess Grace, to attend the wedding of halrdresser Alexandre's son, Michel Raimon, to Vicom-tesse Evelyns de Beschart.

For Alexandre, it was "the most beautiful day in my life." "Saint-Tropez is my home town," he added, and I've always remained a true Tropezian. I resent the fact that Saint-Tropez has a sloppy reputation, with people going around bare-foot. For once, we'll show the world that we can be classy

The wedding, for sure, was classy if not to say regal. Pro-tocol was on a par with Versailles. The Saint-Tropez police were, in a dither because of the presence of Princess Graco and the commissairs dispatched a couple of motorcycles to greet her as she left Monaco. He also re-routed all the one-way streets of Saint-Tropez in order to ease the way for all those Rolls-Royces to go through the village's streets which in spots can barely accommodate a comple of bicycles.

Three Processions As Alexandre, who cometimes can be very furmy without trying, said of Frincess Grace:

"After all, ebe's not a movie etar. She's a reigning princess." Because of all those royal highnesses, you had to have no less than three corteges (wedding processions). The royal one had Princess Grace en tête followed by the Due and Duse d'Orléans, a whole tribe of Bourbon-Parme plus Comte Carl-Johan Bernadotte from Sweden and Comte Waldemar de Rosenborg from Denmark. . Alexandre, in tails and top hat, proudly led the family pro-cession with his mother, a sweet old lady; she said with tears in her eyes that, yes, she was very proud of her son and that he was a good boy. Finally, the bride on her father's arm and followed by her family.

The bride was a Botticelli vision in a copy of a 15th-century, white satin panniered dress with pearl-embroidered waist-a work of art by local fashion star Georgette Vachon, who has a boutique on the Saint-Tropez waterfront. That dress had 30 seamstresses working full blast for the last three months and poor Mrs. Vachon on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Jean Barthet had concocted the bonnet of orange flowers and lilacs framed by a pearl-sprinkled braid (you guess who did the hairdo.) Actually, Alex-andre was quite restrained. He used as little hair as possible. The several-yard-long train was topped by a lace, flower-sprinkled veil and held by half a

There were a few funny mo ments. Prince André de Bour-bon-Parme (who was acting both as witness and master of ceremonias) disappeared at a crucial moment. He had gone for a drink at Da Lollo, a nearhy bar. He had an excuse. It was a hot day. And the photog-raphers were so crammed they had to take turns in order to shoot from the pulpit.

Afterwards a buffet style Provencel lunch was held around the pool of the Byblos Hotel. During the meal the guests were treated to, yes, more Provencial dancing. The Princess Grace before sitting down and the huge, five-tiered, pink and white wedding cake crumbled to pieces when the newlyweds tried to cut it with

Not all the celebrities who were invited made it Elizabeth Taylor sent a ten-line cable from Hollywood. But those who came were ample demonstra-tion that Alexandre has gaintion that Alexandre has gained not only the heads but also the hearts of his famous clients. "I came hecause I like him," said Baronne Guy de Rothschild. "He is sweet and touching." Mrs. Walter Eytan, wife of the Iarael Ambassador, said: For the last ten years, he's been a friend to me." Curd Jurgens declared him "not only a femulous hairdresser but a personality." As for Princess. Grace: "About, Alexandre. ... one has to speak in super stives

Leoncavallo's 'Edipo Re' Is Revived in Naples

NAFLES, May 24.—Besidee his ever-popular "Pagliacci," the first of his operas to be performed and the only one still third performance in Raly, following a 1939 broadcast and a staging, in 1959, at the Siena-Festival

It'e not hard to understand why this "Edipe" has not been heard more often. In the first place, Leoncavallo is the least admired of the whole verismo school, which, in itself, is hardly in favor with musicologists. No biography of Leoncavallo exists, even in Italy (where there are huge tomes on Mascagni and Glordano). But there is a second, stronger reason for the neglect, specifically, of his "Edipo." This it, naturally, its subject: it seems today incongruous if not irreverent to dress the tragic herr of antiquity in the clothing of conio or, in short of verience.

And it is, in fact, a bit dis-concerting, at first, to hear Creon narrate his visit to the oracle in tuneful music that slightly echoes the doet of Nedda and Silvio in "Pagliacci." But Leoncavallo was no fool. The most cosmopolitan and cul-tivated of the verismo compasers, he approaches Sophecies with respect, its long single act, the librate fashloned by Giovacchino Forzane, sticks close to the Greek tragedy. In the musical idiom there are evident attempts at subtlety and refine-ment, and some of the orchestral and choral pages are remarkably advanced for their author. French influences Saint-given regulary, Ruggero Leon-cavallo wrote some 19 works for the stage, of varying degrees of seriousness and of various length. One of the most carnest, length. One of the most earnest, surely is his "Edipo Re," revived here at the Teatro San Carlo last night. This setting of Sophoeles's "Oedipus Rex" was composed in 1919, the year of Leoncavallo'e death, and was given its premiere—at the Chicago Opera—in 1920. The title role was conceived for Titta Ruffo, the great baritone, who created it in Chicago and also sang it elsewhere before his retirement. After that, the opera vanished. This was only its

is, in its own terms, moving and heartfelt. Giüllo Floravanti, the Edipo of last night, is no Titta Ruffo, but he outdid himself and gave a creditable interpretation of taxing, rewarding role. Luiss Malagrida, replacing an indisposed colleague at the last minute, was an adequate Jocasta; and the smaller roles were fairly well sung. The set, by Bics Brichetto, was ugly in design and was poorly lighted. Franco Guandalini'a staging kept things in order, and Armando La Ross

The Thrown Stone

Bazooka shells explode in an Israeli school bus, and there are dead and mangled children. Artillery fire breaks over a Lebanese village, and there are more dead and wounded. Rumors of imminent massive military action flutter through the Middle East: two Arabs are beaten up in faraway New York, and Arab spokesmen demand that the United Nations be removed from that city. The emotions wash up at desks in the White House and on Capitol Hill; they bounce across, by some cosmic telstar, to Moscow, and a stern editorial, promising even greater aid to the Arab states, appears in Prayda

This is not to soggest that the brutal attack upon schoolchildren, of itself, will decide the policies of either Moscow or Washington, or that it may even affect them in any important manner. Nor does it imply that the attack was an isolated piece of terrorism, remote from either cause or appreciation of effect. It was rather, another stone tossed into that churning pool of the Middle East, and its ripples are difficult to distinguish from the many others that spread out so widely from that standing source of trouble.

But the tragic episode does suggest how irrational acts fit into, and exacerbate, a situation which should be subject to rational analysis and reasonable solution. If terror on the Lebanese border, stimulated from Syria, is an element in the calculations of NATO strategists in Brussels, in Moscow and in the Pentagon, no less than of theologists in Cairo and oil entrepreneurs in Bahrein and Tehran, here is another example of the danger of loosing primitive emotions by primitive acts, when only the calmest possible application of collective wisdom can bring sane answers.

It is a currently popular fantasy to contrast the wisdom of some gentle madwoman on Chaillot with the institutionalized insanity around her-a fallacy that is promoted by those who do not know what madness, in the medical sense, is really like-its utter apathy, searing melancholy, horrendous fears and homicidal rages. If, from the standpoint of a disembodied intelligence, the world is indeed a madhouse run by the inmates, the answer is not to seek escape into fantasies-another form of madness-but to try to inculcate common sense. It is the perfectionists, as Raymond Aron pointed out recently, those who seek an absolute justice from their own point of view, who are the dangerous ones today, because they would kill to achieve their Absolute justice is no more attainable in the Middle East than anywhere else in the world, but history has bred up more perfectionists there than elsewhere. And unless they can come to terms with an imperfect humanity, the killing will go on-to no one's advantage.

Washington—Moscow—Peking

Since Moscow and Peking coordinate virtually nothing important these days, it was sheer coincidence that on the same morning last week the Chinese called off the scheduled meeting with American representatives in Warsaw while Pravda loosed one of its most severe attacks against Mao and his policies. Nevertheless the juxtaposition of these two events helps provide a useful perspective on present relationships in the vital Washington-Moscow-Peking triangle.

Two points are particularly interesting about the Warsaw meeting's cancellation. It was called off almost at the last moment, though there was ahundant opportunity to take the action during the previous two and a half weeks following the entrance of American soldiers into Cambodia, Furthermore, Peking was careful to make plain that it was merely postponing the next round of United States-Chinese negotiations, not ending the current series of talks that had been resumed last January after a long hiatus.

It is difficult to escape the impression that some elements in Peking attach extraordinary importance to these talks with the United States, fought almost to the last minute to try to keep the scheduled meeting despite Cambodia, and won assurancee that the contacts will be continued in the near future. If so, there is ground for hope for improvement in Sino-American relations, once the new strains created by Cambodia have been ended or eased as the promised exit of American troops is completed in Pravda's vigorous assault on Maoism and its works suggests a contrasting escalation PARIS.—As its ministers gather for French troops stationed in in Sino-Soviet tension. Five years of massive American participation in the war in Southeast Asia have shown that so long as Washington threatens neither the Soviet Union nor China, those two countries will give their own mutual hatred a priority over their antipathy toward the United States.

Moscow and Peking maneuver against each other-both worried about war-with a careful eye on the United States and its attitude. Each side hopes for American help, or at least benevolent neutrality, if the worst should occur in their relationship, ordinated leadership in many Washington's great failure has been inability to take advantage of these tensions in the effort to end the war in Vietnam. Setback at Kassel

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt had no illusions from the beginning about how difficult he would find the task of trying to normalize relations with East Germany. Even so, however, he must have been staggered by the harshness of East German Premier Willi Stoph's attitude at Kassel.

Not only did Stoph demand full diplomatic recognition of East Germany as prerequisite for substantive, detailed negotiations, but he engaged in a personal attack on Mr. Brandt and his policies. The East German media followed this up with blistering criticism of Bonn. Little wonder that Chancelior Brandt told a news conference Friday that his talks with Stoph in Erfurt and Kassel had shown "how deep the chasm is between both parts of Germany."

Chancellor Brandt naturally will press on with his efforts for reconciliation and normalization. He can point out that his tense meeting in Kassel ended without a complete shutting of the door to further negotiations. There is hope for a third meeting in the actumn. The Brandt-Stoph talks did not take place in isolation from Bonn's current Intensive discussions with Moscow and Warsaw. Since the Kremlin probably forced the East Germans to meet with Brandt in the first place, progress in the Moscow talks may yet have useful influence on the East

But even the most optimistic supporters of Chancellor Brandt's imaginative approach to the Communist world must realize that Stoph's intransigence at Kassei represents a setback. It will strengthen his critics in Bonn who opposed Brandt's policy even before Erfurt and who will interpret the results of Kassei as confirmation of their skepticism. We hope and believe that the chancellor will not be deterred by their arguments from pursuit of his basic policy. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Chinese Comeback

The Cambodian affair has already furnished China in the past weeks the opportunity of making a spectacular comeback on the international scene. China's master stroke was to patronize-after hesitationthe "summit conference of Indochinese peoples" last month, which enabled it to gather vast moral benefits at little cost.

The Chinese gains in prestige have been obtained at the expense of the U.S.S.R., which shrouded itself in an ambiguous attitude toward Prince Sihanouk.

NATO Does as the Romans Do

By C. L. Sulzberger

in Rome for their annual spring conclave. NATO finds itself in a condition similar to that of the New York stock market. Both proclaim they are not engulfed by depression but few people are wholly convinced.

As current American economic contortions inspire agony over here, there is a feeling of retrodon to which is added the discomforting thought that NATO's giant prop. Uncle Sam, who pays half the bills, is befuddled and pos-sibly less interested. Loss of coaspects of a complex U.S. society has been reflected abroad by doubts on United States resolve and purpose.

Small Comfort

Most statesmen are too polite to put it this bluntly but they are decreasingly satisfied with reassuring platitudes and the thought that, if the West is in trouble, the Soviet bloc, with indifferent leadership. festering disaidence and permanen agricultural problems, is even deeper in the slough.

Sometimes mood is more important than reality. Even if President Nixon can rally divided American opinion and in the end prove the correctness of his leadership on both foreign military and local political battlefields, this still remains to be demonstrated. What the allies see at this instant in time is a turbulent America swept by advancing neo-isolationism that cannot help but ultimately reach Western Europe.

Meanwhile, the Russians play their own game of cold war Krieg-spiel with tough deliberation, dispatching entire military units to Egypt, beefing up fleets on many seas—above all the vital Mediterranean—and clearly benefiting from bemused U.S. public opinion to improve their status in the vital Vienna SALT arms negotiations.

The Soviets have overtaken the United States in some sectors of modern weaponry and are pushing hard to reinsure this position by installing intercontinental missiles in medium range missile sites. multaneously they insist all NATO weapons systems based in Europe which, even if called tactical, can reach the U.S.S.R. must be classified as strategic in the SALT talks. The final logic of this is to put America increasingly in the front line, build up pressure in Europe to urge withdrawal of many of the 7,500 U.S. nuclear warheads here, and pull the alliance apart.

As spin-off from the neo-isolationist movement resulting from Indochina arguments and from the American economic illness, there is more and more fear that Nixon may not in the end be able to hold the line and keep in Europe the number of U.S. forces considered a necessary minimum.

France's Role

Nor will the European silles make up any shortfall. France, half in and half out of NATO, has indicated it is prepared to let its units cooperate in allied military exercises and eager to do so-especially in the Mediterranean so long as this is on a basis of "coordination," not "integration" under alliance command.

To some extent, the French are even prepared to extend such "coordination" to the peacetime cooperation of their troops inside Prance, bringing the latter into line with understandings now existing Germany.

But on the all-important matter of NATO strategy, France remains the odd man out. On February 18, Nixon suggested a comprehensive study of alliance defenses, but the French have let it be known they interpret this as a form of "integration" and will not participate. If NATO is further weakened by the downhill economic slide, waver ing American will power or gradual redoction of its relative military strength in Europe, individual partners could start reviewing their national policies.

Eastward Looks further than France has gone in trying to reach their own accomcompanies like Italy's Plat already have moved into the Soviet market while Washington keeps Ford out. European business, haunted by shrinking prospects in the West, locks Bastward.

This is a disheartening situation. There has been no improvement on the international scene. China talks bluntly about the possibility of world conflict. Simmering halfwar in the Middle East could detenate a nuge explosion any day.

Now is a moment for particular unity and particular strength. But. no matter how placed the NATO meeting's terminal communiqué, it is improbable that either unity or strength will feature the discusa state of confusion. While in Rome, the ministers are likely to modations with Russia. Private do as the Romans do.

The 'Cambodian' Vote

By Chalmers M. Roberts

WASHINGTON.-As of this writing, it appears that President Nixon is going to come out of the Cambodian venture in a way that will be a short-term triumph with short-term meaning up to and through the November elections in the United States. The probability is that he will have all the American troops out by, or even before, his self-imposed public deadline of June 30, and the probability is that the Cambodian incursions have sufficiently upset the Vietnamese-Viet Cong military setup so that they cannot retaliate in any really meaningful way before election day. Thus Nixon should be able, in the words of one senatorial prescription for South Vietnam, to declare victory and get out. Maybe they will even pile the cap-tured rice and Communist weapons on the President's deak for the photographers just as stacks of favorable letters once were placed there in another context to show public approval.

Caveats

In all this, however, a number of caveats must be added. The November election here may turn on issues other than Cambodia-Vietnam, such as the state of the domestic economy and of the cities. Even in Cambodia-Vietnam there are caveats. One is the situation in Saigon, where, American officials here feel, President Thieu is digging himself in more and more in the manner of the late Ngo Dinh Diem. The resulting restlessness is still under control, as far as can be seen from here, but it does create some nervousness in Washington. More critical as a caveat is the situation in the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh. There are varied Washington views on the survivability of the Lon Nol regime but an agreed generally low reading on him as a leader. As to survivability, those who look at Cambodia in terms of the military problem worry that the Communists are able to knock off Lon Nol and his armed forces if they make a decision to do so. Hence the effort by the Nixon administration to keep open the op-tion for further South Victoamese incursions into Cambodia, for American air or even adviser sup-port of such South Vietnamese action and for an all-Asian force of some sort composed of Vietnamese, Thais and perhaps Indonesians to aid Lon No! in line with the Nixon doctrine of helping Asians who help themselves.

Red Intentions Those who view the survivability that the Communists do not at this point want to take over the gov-ernment in Phnom Penh because they are not yet ready to do it their way.

The Communists, that is, the Hanoi polithuro in the first instance, know they lack a political infrastructure in Cambodia. The ousted Prince Sihanouk used to execute Communists and he successfully kept the Communist role at a minimal level. This line of reasoning views a big Americanbacked anti-Communist force in Cambodia as counterprodoctive because it will, they believe, simply heip the Communists more rapidly build a base because of the growing distaste for Lon Nol and such Hanol, and Peking, too, in this view have no desire to put Sinanouk back in power even though he would be totally indebted to them. It is better to keep Sihanouk in Peking and to act in his mame inside Cambodia; Sihanouk thus would be nearly a total captive, as he now is, whereas back in Phnom Penh he would try to regain some semblance of national independence and maneuver.

A collapse of Lon Noi's regime for some other reason, leaving a vacuum, might force Hanoi and Peking to reinstate Sihanouk if they could and they probably could. The estimate is that this is an unlikely prospect for some time. Hence more reason to think Nixon may get the breaks he wants up to and through the November elections. After that is something

The other day when he spoke in Texas, the military command in Saigon announced the latest weekly casualty toll—217 more Americans killed, 1,281 wounded. This brings the total American dead in this war to 42,118, and no amount of political pollution will cover up these ghastly facts.

What will have been achieved when all this senseless killing is over? How are the South Vietse going to keep the enemy. out of the Cambodian sanctuaries when they can't keep them out of Saigon? A year from now, after 52 more weekly casualty lists, how. will Indochina he more secure with 150,000 fewer American soldiers?

These are the questions Agnew doesn't answer and they will not to away by blaming the press for asking them.

The Vice-President is worried about the rise of isolationist senti-ment in the United States, and well he might he, but again he cannot blame this on the administration'e critics in the Senate or the press. The cause of the new isolationism is the war, and the longer it goes. on, cutting and dividing this na-tion to the heart, the harder it will be to get public support for American intervention even in areas; years ahead.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have the answer in the famous Extra Cash Plan that...

These are the ONLY exclusions!

Your National Health Plan Policy covers every kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or disorder; preguncy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and expenses resulting from any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of your Policy... during the first 2 years only.

This last item is a real help if you already have a health problem. If you are sick before you take out this Policy, you will even be covered for that condition after the Policy has been in effect for 2 years. Meanwhile, of course, every new condition is covered.

Nationally known and respected.

This is the kind of outstanding protection you have read about in Reader's Digest, Parents', National Geographic and other leading publications. The special plans offered by the National Liberty Corporation group of companies are today helping policyowners in all 50 states—and many foreign countries—paying benefits at the rate of more than one million dollars a month.

Grateful Policyowners write . . . "Received your check for $880.00. I appreciate having the money sent directly to me so I could decide how to use it." NICHOLAS CRISTI, Green Bay, Wisc. "It was wonderful to receive your check for $555.00. I'm very pleased. It paid real well." Mas. Bessue Geisinger, Kansas City, Mo. "Everyone should have your soverage. I know I wouldn't be without it."

WALTER TUCKER, Fayetteville, N.C. Moke your decision carefully.

Think how costly a hospital confinement will he. Imagine paying for those indispensable doctor, surgical and nursing services that are not covered by your present insurance.

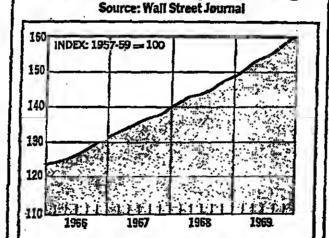

Would you be able to afford the quiet and privacy of a private room and a private nurse, should you so desire? Or a telephone to keep in touch with loved ones? Or the rental of a TV set to help peas the lonely hours? Who would pay your bills that keep on coming in at home? Many folks have lost their life savings, their cars, even their homes trying to meet runaway hospital and medical costs. And no one knows whose turn it will be next.

·Why you must act before the date shown on your Enrollment Form—just a few days from today.

Why do we give you so little time to euroll in this Plan-only a few days? Because this is a limited Eurollment Period—and we must receive your Eurollment Form at the same time as all the others in order to pass on to you the savings that come from processing many policies at one time. This highly efficient "mass enrollment" method enables us to give you the broadest coverage at the largest past. coverage at the lowest cost.

We mail you the Policy as soon as we receive your Enrollment Form. When the Policy arrives, examine it in the privacy of your own home. Take all the time you need. It's a very short of your own home, Take all the time you need, it's a very short document, and you'll be pleasantly aurprised to discover there is NO FINE PRINT. Then—show it, if you wish, to someone you trust Perhaps your lawyer, accountant or doctor. Better still — show it to your own insurance man . . . even though he may be working for another company! If he is a personal friend, he has your hest interests in mind. So you can believe him when he tells you there is no better bargain available anywhere—at any ories! where-at any price!

Medical Costs Skyrocketing!

MEDICAL CARE COSTS rose in September, 1989, to 157.6% of the 1957-59 average from 156.8% a month earlier. These costs are components of the Government consumer price index.

HERE ARE YOUR LOW RATES.

The following rate chart shows how little it costs after the first month to protect yourself, your spouse and any adult depend-ents. Naturally, at these low rates, we can issue you only one policy of this type. Each adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown

Exit a Speaker: How Much Will It Mean?

By Warren Weaver Jr.

WASHINGTON. - Today the WASHINGTON.—"Today the iuliest power lies in the personal influence of the occupant of the speakership. It is relied upon far more than a legitimate share of authority. To maintain personal influence, the speaker is forced to engage in a savage political scramble in twolving sectional in terests. local claims and personal advancements, all of which are more fondly regarded by the inner circle of the House than party loyalties or vital national issues."

This paragraph, written five years ago by Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, a longtime student of the House of Representatives, helps explain, among other things why John McCormack will probably not go down in congressional an-nals as one of the great speakers despite his

Even so, Mr. McCormack's announcement that he would not seek re-election this year was seek re-election this year was a thunderclap over the Capitol. He had insisted as recently as a few months ago that he intended to serve at least one more term, despite his age of 78 and mounting displeasure with his unexciting regime.

But things had not been going well for the speaker. A prom-inent Democrat, a Saltonstall at that, made it known he might challenge Mr. McCormack in a primary in his South Boston district. The clood of the conspiracy and perjury indictment of his chief aide, Martin Sweig, and his friend, Nathan Volosher still hung over his office.

The description of the speakership above also indicates why Mr. McCormack's predecessor, Mr. McCormack's predecessor, Sam Rayburn of Texas, is judged among the few immortals to preside over the House and why his probable successor, Carl Albert of Oklahoma, may encounter some measure of difficulty in improving on the McCormack record

For the truth is that the speakership is a position with a good deal more prestige than power. His real strength is not in the rules of the House but, if at all, in the minds of its

It was this sort of specialized service that Sam Rayburn provided with diligence and great skill during his years in the chair. He built up the due bills. John McCormack, already nearly 70 when he took the rostrum in 1961, never accumulated that complicated man-byman collection of personal due bills that can knit a heterogeneous assemblage of politicians closely to the man they acknowledge as their leader. He hed their respect, their affection, but be did not always have

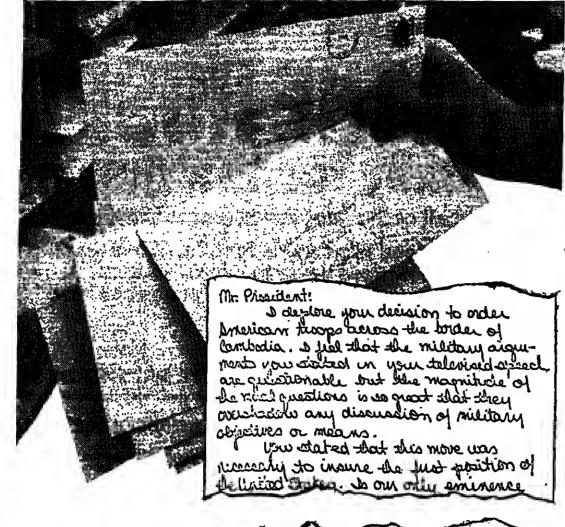

If elected next January-and no one doubted last week he would be-Carl Albert will not inherit any more directly usable authority than John McCor-mack will have laid down. It will be up to him to see what kind of show be is able to run whether the native cunning and dogged Texas perseverance cf Sam Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson has seeped north across the border into Okla-

Mr. Albert, of course, is a different man, with the genuine intellectual attainment of a Rhodes scholarship and the somewhat more current vantage point of a man who came to Congress after World War II. in 1946. At 62, be is not precisely the leader of a youth movement in the House, but be is a clear generation closer to today than his predecessor,

In the wake of last week's announcement of Speaker Mc-Cormack's retirement, no contest appeared for Mr. Albert, but a very spirited one developed over filling his present job of Democratic leader.

Liberal candidates rushed forward in such imposing and selfconfident numbers that they threatened to fractionalize their tenuous "majority" within the House Democratic delegation. There were Morris Udall of Arizona, Mr. Bolling and James O'Hara of Michigan, with at least Edward Boland of Massachusetts in the wings.

If the liberals are unable to unite on one of these men, the job could go to Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, now chairman of the Democratic caucus. He is presently expected to get votes from a number of Southern conservatives plus some big-city congressmen who respect his position as the Washington agent of Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago.

Tons of Mail Still Pouring Into Capital

By Nona B. Brown
WASHINGTON (NYT). - On WASHINGTON (NYT).—On an inside corridor of the ground floor of the Executive Office Building, next to the White House, there is a big room awash with mail. Two hundred and fifty thousand letters were backed up there the other day, letters to the President of the United States on the issues of Cambodia and the Kent State University killings in Ohio. At least another 100,000 aiready had been processed, and about 75,000 more were in the pipeline.

The flood of mail on these

The flood of mail on these intertwined issues, perhaps the greatest ever to hit Washington, has sent a similar, if not larger stream to Capitol Hill. There, for example, the office of Sen. J. William Fulbright, D., Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and leading critic of Vietnam policy. has already counted more than 225,000 communications. And the office of Sen. George Aiken, R., Vt., which normally handles less than 1.000 letters a week, was struggling with 20,000.

An experienced Capitol Hill staff aide, weary and dismayed. looked up from the chaotic piles of paper. "The President couldn't have realized what a raw national nerve he was tourhing with the decision to invede Cambodia," she said. "At first. our letters were 6 to 1 against Nixon. Now the proportion must be 30 to 1. I beve literally never seen anything like it in all my years here."

Fulbright's Mail

The latest Fulbright count, which includes telegrams (34,-300), letters (90,000) and names on petitions (100.350), stands et 97 percent supporting the Fulbright position. 3 percent sup-porting the President. The tally is roughly four or five days be bind the influx, which continues unabated at the rate of five or eix mail sacks a day. Needles to say, the proportions at the White House are not the same, since mail tends to flow toward the man whose ideas the writer

Last November, for instance, when President Nixon invited the "silent majority" to speak out in response to his policy of gradual withdrawal from Vietnam, the 310,000 letters that resulted ran two-and-a-half to one in support of the President.

Today, firm information on the tenor of White House mail is not yet available. The flood is such—as many as 80,000 letters a day since the Cambodian invasion speech of April 30 and the Kent student deaths on May 4-that no one honestly knows the totals. Or the proportions. It may he as close as 50-50, but an informed guess outs the figure at around 60 percent

It is clear that, were President Nixon able to read his mail at any length (normally, be gets a statistical report plus a crosssection sample of about 40 letters once a week), be would find the same deer concern that he can see on the streets.

He would even have had a forewarning, before the etorm broke. For in the placid weeks of April when his mail still spoke of other matters. Vietnam and the looming Cambodian issue were already the number-

But when one looks at random "sorts" of the mail, as the packets of from 25 to 75 letters move from the White House mail room through the hands of the 17 analysis, there are impressions. Lots of school children write, and retired people, businessmen, housewives, religlous fanatics, and people with personal problems ranging from the "surface electric ltch" to sons in prison or Vietnam. After the Cambodia decision came the mail from the professors, doctors, executives, affluent suburbanites, students - a strong surge from the educated and articulate

There are hints, too, of the kind of people who write in their home addresses.

To which the earnest and hardworking Cornwall officials who mounted the cleaning campaign reply that they had not "a matter of a few months" to play with: Staring them in the face was the prospect of losing the annual $120 million that tourists spend in Cornwall each summer. They had six weeks to PENZANCE, England (WF). The Torrey Canyon disaster provides stunning evidence of nature's tremendous recupera-tive power: Three years after the event, its effects can be detected only by the most experienced marine blologist.

Although 15,000 tons of crude oil were dumped along Comwall's 140-mile e o a st line at Easter, 1967, all a layman can see today (if it is pointed out to him) are some preternaturally blackened rocks.

The supertanker, on a run from the Persian Gulf to Milford Haven, tried to save half an hour by cutting close to Land's End. It drove on to Pollard Rock of the Seven Stones, 15 miles to the west of Corneral's forthest point, and re-15 miles to the west of Cornwall's farthest point, and remained speared on the jagged subsurface cliffs, its back broken by wind and tide, surviving repeated bombings to set it aftre, until six weeks later when 't wrenched free and dropped below the waves. In the first two weeks, it spilled its argo of 117,000 tons of Kuwait crude.

Kuwait crude. Never in history had there been a sea pollution of such magnitude and malevolence so close to densely inhabited land. Most of the oil was mercifully driven out to see by a freakish godsend of a northeast wind that sprang up after the first week. But about 21,000 tons hit the Brittany coast and 15,000 tons came ashore at Land's End and along the north and south Cornish coasts, vacationland for millions of Britons.

Predictions Wrong

Many predicted that Cornwall would be ruined as a holiday spot for a decade or a generation. As it turned out, not even the 1967 tourist season suffered. About 80 to 90 percent of the damage to the great sandy beaches and the superb rocky cover was cleaned up in six weeks and the rest by the end of the season.

It was done by massive use of detergents: For every three tons of oil that hit the coast, two tons of detergents were dumped on it. There can be no doubt of its efficacy. It was sprayed on the rocks and sands in a gigantic operation in volving: ships, p'unes and helicopters.

fouled sand was simply bulldozed up and hauled eway. More usually, the beaches were plowed and harrowed as the emulsifier was sprayed on and mixed. With each outgoing tide, more and more of the horrible "chocolate mousse" went out to sea and less and less returned on the next flood. The process could be thought of as a stupendous and repeated scrubbing and flushing of millions of tons

Most died from the effect on the plumage. the rest from ingesting the oil. Well-meaning attempts to eleanse contamined birds proved futile and, in the end, cruel.

Birds Perished

Many thousands of sea birds perished and the pre-1967 population has not yet been restor-ed. The decrease, British ornithologists are beginning to conclude, is less attributable to the Torrey Canyon than to what seems to be a worldwide decline in many species, probably because of chronic contamination

In the judgment of the Ply-mouth laboratory: "Floating oil is not a serious hazard to marine life on the open sea save m the case of birds ... Oil deposited on the coast is, however, severely damaging to coastal amenities and may affect shore animals by smothering them "Nevertheless, we were surprised how well such conditions.

could be tolerated and survived by many shore animals. Limpets; for example, were found to recover completely even after they had been left under an apparently continuous oil layer. Indeed, limpets have been observed to be grazing on rocks coated with eathered oil, in-gesting it without noticeable barm. There is no doubt, however, of

Ecological Effects

Only one major ecological change took place as a result of the huge oil spill, and that appears to be temporary. The de-tergents killed off large numbers of the gastropodswhelks and periwinkles—which browse on certain forms of young seaweed growing on the rocks along the shoreline_As.s consequence, two or three vari-cties of weed, one of which is a peculiarly norious and slimy green, grew apace in 1967, covering scres of rocks in some beaches (the year provided particularly good growing condi-tions for this variety of weed, however, so all the result must not be laid to the loss of the limpets). By now the weeds that flourished in 1967 have come to the and of their life span, and the limpets are back, gorging on the young sprouts. The green swaths have almost disappeared and, the experts declare, will have done so completely by next year.

Effects on Fisheries

Fortunately for Cornwall, there was no r Jution from the Torrey Canyon into estuaries where there were important shellfish beds. But experiments show beyond doubt the harmful effect of detergents on edible shellfish: scientists urgently recommend not trying to treat any oil that may drift over them. Unless the sludge descends and covers them, the crustaceans will probably survive nicely, although they may be inecable, by tainting, for a time. But detergents will . Il them.

Along the Cornish coast, the catch at the time of the Torrey Canyon disaster did not suffer by more than a fraction of percent, according to W.H. Williams, - government - inspector of fisheries for the Southwest, Immediately after the wreck most fishermen were drafted for spraying operations at sea to dissolve the slick before it hit shore. Two weeks later, when they resumed their normal tasks, the lobster catches of only three boats were affected: There was a taint of the detergent in some roe, not evident until they were cooked. There was no taint of oil. One catch of mackerel was contaminated again by detergents, and from boxes on score, accidentally sprayed, into which the catch was inadvertently Mr. Williams reports seeing macketel pulled up, 100 yards-offshore, from the middle of a seething, milky oil-and-detergent swath, three weeks after the disaster. They were un-

Lesson From Disaster

Ghasily as the Torrey Canyon disaster was, it proved out truth, according to Leslie H. Cooper, the deputy director of the Plymouth laboratory. In an interview he said:

That's why he was in such a hurry with Khrushchev. why he made a mistake about the Berlin wall, and got us into Vietnam. If you re-read his inaugural address, it gives the whole philosophy of being the world policeman and it isn't as good as it seemed at the time. I have very mixed feelings about Kennedy. In 1987, having since taken his column to The Washington Post, Walter Lippmann gave up newspaper work and his Washington home. He spends the winter in a New York hotel four blocks from his birthplace, travels in the spring and is in his home on Mount Desert Island, Maine, from June to October. He was 80 last September. The most striking thing about Mr. Lippmann and his wife, Helen, is their grace and youth. They both like parties; Mr. Lippmann is a cry-martini man. The photographs that accompanied Mr. Lippmann's column for years are not outdated—his face is wise, his hair is only starting to gray, his circumflex evehrows are raised in equable surprise. The photographs do not prepare one for the pink cheeks, broad smile and enormous charm. He speaks carefully—a care that clearly comes not from pomp but responsibility—with never a useless word. The difference is that television is inevitably near a monopoly -anyone can buy e printing press, you can't do that with television. Television is a public service and cannot be judged with newspapers, so Agnew made a mistake in lump-

It takes the form of transportation, materials like plastics, chemicals such as contraceptives. They are all enormously revolutionary, and so is the making of them, which takes a special ebility. A lot of people whe in the old society would have made it all right -younger sons, people of no special talent who could have been epprentices—don't fit and don't want to fit. The rebellion is partly that they don't fit, end partly that they den't

I don't even know anyone in it. I hadn't really thought that women were a deprived part of mankind. There is a great deal of discrimination in jobs, but that's a fairly simple problem to settle.

Q-You have said this is the most revolutionary period in centuries. Will the structures of government survice?

A-I would think net. The revolution will produce forms of government, but that doesn't mean for a minute that the people who call themselves revolutionaries will produce

Trouble in French Communist Camp

Garaudy's Loud Exit Shakes Party

By James Goldsborough

DARIS.—"Some leave quietly" was the French Communist party's comment on the expulsion of intellectual Roger Garandy from its ranks last week. Others the ambitious or corrupt ones, make a let of noise." . It is not every day that a Communist deviationist bows out making as much noise as Mr. Garandy. Nor is it every day that he can But then the Communists aren't in power in

Mr. Garaudy has shown that the Czechoslovak affair is far from dead in the Communist world. For, as he says, he is not alone. The others may not speak out because they believe the dictates ef "democratic centralism" oblige them to keep silent and follow the party leadership. But others agree

Mr. Garandy's position is explained in an inscription to his latest book, "The Whole Truth": "Ne one will ask the onestion, the judges said about the Dreyfus affair, The question was nevertheless asked. And history has provided the an-

One More Case

The Garaudy affair might have been just one more case of a Communist renegade struck down by the apparatus if it weren't for the importance of his revelations. It is his disgust over the invasion of Czechoslovekie and the invasion's implications that provoked him into forcing the hand of both Czechoslovak and French Communists and reviving the affair at the very time the Russians were in Prague signing a "normalization" treaty whose point presumably was to pretend that the whole thing never even happened.

He has also brought to light the rude dilemma of the French party: It has shown that no matter what the Russians may do, it cannot live without

And so long as it cannot live without them, it is doomed to failure in France. Any coalition with the non-Communist left will be difficult, and no hope of winning non-Communist leftists to Communism will be realized.

Mr. Garaudy, 56, is an un-usual man to have earned the wrath of his party. A dedicated Communist since his earliest years and a former Stalinist in his own words "from head to foot," he had become one of the French party's leading thinkers. He is a prolific writer of works on Marrism.

He has now brought harsh accusations against his party. He has accused the present leadership of Georges Marchais of cooperating with the Czechoslevak hardliners in their crusade against former party leader Alexander Dubcek and his fol-

He provoked his party into publishing the secret netes of the July, 1968, conversations between French party leader Waldeck Rochet and Mr. Dub-cek. He has accused Mr. Marchais and "clique" of manipulating the party against the will of the masses. And he has shed light on four internal Communist conflicts:

 The antagonism of elements of the present Czechoslovak leadership to the French party for the latter's "disapproval" of Warsaw Pact invasion. It was Alois Indra, secretary of the Czechoslovak Central Committee, whe revealed publicly early this year that the French had turned over their notes. In doing so, Mr. Inora completely disregarded the effect this reve-lation would have inside France, where the "disapproval" had been widely applauded by French

• The hostility of "liberal" Marxists to the return of the Soviet leadership to Stalinism, which Mr. Garandy defines as maintaining et any price the idea of a single model for socialism . . . and maintaining their hegemony over international Communism"

• The fight now going on inhardliners such as Mr. Indra and the more moderate epproach of party leader Gustav Husak, It was Mr. Indra whe urged the French to show him their netes to prepare a possible trial against Mr. Dubcek, a trial which Mr. Husak has so far op-

 And finally, there is the struggle within the French party itself. What has become of Mr. Rochet? For the party he is still "convalescing from two opera-tiens for kidney and prostate trouble."

But is that all that is bothering Mr. Rochet? The party newspaper L'Humanité said last week that his health had shown considerable progress, but that he needed s 'long period of rest." Despite the progress, the party still refuses to allow people to see him.

Nervous Breakdown?

There are too many reports that Mr. Rochet has had a nerveus breakdewn te dismiss them completely. It is no secret that Mr. Rochet, the man whose labors brought the French party out of its ghetto into the 1965-69 alliance with the non-Communist left, was crushed by the Czechoslovakian affair. It was under his leadership that the French party condemned the invasion, a condemnation that eppears to have been forgotten under Mr. Marchais.

The Garaudy affair, then, has borne more fruit than the Rochet-Dubcek notes. But the netes command the most inter-

Everything in them indicates that Mr. Dubcek had no inten-tion of delivering his country to the capitalists. Rather they show a man who is trying to revive his country after years of difficulties under the con-servative leadership of Antonin Nevetny.

Mr. Garaudy shows compre-hension for Mr. Dubcek's efforts in "The Whole Truth." Czechoslovakia, he asserts, was a special case in the Communist world. When the Communists came to power in 1948, a strong party epparatus elready existed: the country was advanced industrially. It was inevitable, Mr. Garaudy says, that the people would grow disenchanted with the censervatives' strict edherence to the Russian line, with the total suppression of basic freedems and the inability of the leadership to solve the country's economic problems.

In the Rochet-Dubrek notes, Mr. Dubcek shows that his whole effort has been to regain the confidence of the people. But he tells Mr. Rochet he will not ge too far. He will allow dissent and opposition only so long as he can control it politically. "If there was a real threat," he says, "then, yes, we would put them in jail."

One has the feeling in reading these notes that M. Dubcek is going too fast. M. Rochet tells him that the Russians are upset over certain specific things certain articles certain declarations. He is telling him to slow down, that the dangers for the moment are too great. Clearly Mr. Rochet smells the invasion and he is edvising Mr. Dubcek to head off a situetion that, in Mr. Rochet's words, "could bring the worst."
"The situation is serious."

says Mr. Rochet, "but we thick it can be saved if only you will take certain steps."

Dubcek's Fear

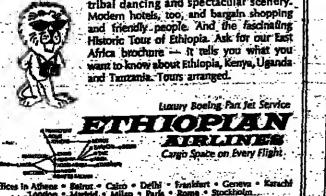

Mr. Dubcek admits he is afraid ef the Russians, but repeats that their worries are unfounded. The conversation between the two men ends disconsoletely.

One can understand the state of Mr. Rochet's health. The Russians, in taking Czechoslo-vakia, sent the French party back to its ghetto and destroyed the fruit of Mr. Rochet's labors. The Italian Communist party saw the trap end has never forgiven the Russians. In consequence, its links to the Italian non-Communist left have not been breken.

What is it that prevents the French from doing the same? Mr. Garaudy says it is Mr. Marchais and his elique.

The relationship with the Soviet Union is the essence of the Garaudy affair, and it has cost M. Garaudy his party card, considerably less than it cost Mr. Dubcek. As Mr. Garaudy says in his book, may history be the judge.

ing rate plan, introduced to the bond market by ENEL, the Italian state electrical authority, with its $125 million offering on which the initial rate will be set this week. It was trading at 98 1/2 to par on a when-issued basis late last week.

Bankers Trust, one of the ENEL managers, says it has another floating rate issue coming up from a U.S. company by the end of the month, with a second U.S. firm and a government issue due in the not-toe-distant

Bankers Trust says the "floaters" are picking up support as investors grow more wary of fixed - interest securities on steadily for two years as coupons rose.

Other market sources say the massive ENEL issue drew more interest from medium-sized banks who saw it as an alternative to the blue-chip revolving credits in which they generally cannot participate, rather than from the traditional investor in Eurobonds. The latter individuals, sources point out, are sitting on their high-coupon discounted bonds and are rather unlikely to get into something where the rate of return could quickly drop if short-term interest rates ever do turn down.

One problem they see is a possible desertion of the floating rate bonds if such a rate break takes place, with a possible dis-counting on the bonds.

All in all, there will be plenty for the Association of Interna-tional Bond Dealers' annual meeting this Friday to mull over ... agenda skide. Possibly the only cheerful thing to be said is that the parley takes place in Copennagen, last week on the American Stock Exchange and on the Over-tha-Counter market in comparatively quiet trading.

By Alexander R. Hammer NEW YORK, May 24 (NYT). Prices continued to decline

The week opened in a bullish manner as most issues in both markets finished in the plus column on Monday. However, the upswing was short-lived as prices mostly declined during the rest of the week.

Brokers attributed the weakness in both markets to myestors' continued anxiety over the nation's economy and that the Vietnam war and our involvement in Cambodia will not be over as soon as expected.

Other minus factors were the prospects of deficits in the federal budget this year and next, the possibility of tax increases next year and a warning by

Communist Chine last week

that "the danger of a world war exists. Brokers described most of the advances made last week as rebounds, resulting from oversold conditions.

The list of new lows for the year continued to increase while the roster of new highs was practically non-existent. On Thursday, a total of $41 issues, the highest in years, made new lows for 1970 while no stocks made oew highs.

The lower trend was reflected the market indicators. The National Quotation Bureau's index of 35 industiral Over-the-Counter issues made new lows for the year while the American Stock Exchange's pricechange index reached its lowest level in almost three years. Issues losing more than five points on the exchange during the week included Savin Business Machines, Doms Petroleum and Milgo Electronics, which was one of the most actively traded stocks during the week

Even good news did not help

some issues. Ploneer Plastics

Corp. declined slightly for the week, although the company reported record first quarter profits of $298.054 compared to earnings of $290,252 in the like quarter last year.

It was no different on the Over-the-Counter market. Issues losing more than five points for the week included Raychem. Eli Lilly, Gleason Works, Tampax, Anheuser Busch, Pabst, Recognition Equipment and Electronic Data Systems.

One of the stronger periormers on the counter market wes Dallas Airmotive which added five points on news of its proposed merger with Cooper

Traders Look for New Moves From Washington To Stem Crumbling in Stock and Bond Markets

By Thomas E. Mullaney NEW YORK, May 24 (NYT). -Wall Street looked vainly to Washington again last week for some constructive news to help restore public confidence and stem the steep slide i . the wobbling financial markets, Investors were dismayed and disheartened as the stock market's relentless decline barreled along through its 18t. month without any new initiatives from the White House to resolve the serious problems that have caused the worst bear market since 1939,

The gloom intensified last week as the market dropped sharply in three of the fix ses-sions. The cumulative loss of more than 40 points in the Dow Jones industrial average repre-sented the widest drop in several months and made the market generally lower for the eighth week in a row. The Dow index, now at its most de-

We were expecting a budget surplus but now were told there will be a deficit. There has been disappointment in every area."

The basic problems of the financial markets, it is quite clear, are inflation and the Vietnam-Cambodian war. If there were visible signs that the ad-ministration was meeting success in coping with both of them, the atmosphere for the market and the economy would be improved perceptibly.

Some Bright Spots

In the midst of all the dark pessimism, however, there were a few bright spots. New nrders for durable goods, for instance, were up 1 percent in April after their sharp drop in March. The wholesale price index, a precursor of general price levels, held quite stable in the most recent month. And 57 nf 58 investment analysts polled by Bankers Monthly magazine expect the Dow average to be higher at the end of the year than it is now; their median estimate for Dec. 31 is 639.50.

Investors seem to have very little confidence left that the economy is under sufficient control to permit interest rates to come down within the foreseeable future.

Worried by the fear that in-flation cannot be crabed, many institutional investors withdrew from the bond market last week, causing bond prices un sink once again while interest rates ascended to the highest levels on record.

With credit markets severely elevated level of inflation that showed no signs of abatement, the value of fixed-income securities continued to decline.

The most discouraging news of the week for the credit mar-kets was the disclosure on Wednesday that the consumer price index had climbed again in April, accelerating to a 7.2 percent annual rate, (Continued on Page 13, Col. 1)

Wall Street likes the concept; since all measures taken so far to halt inflation and restore confidence have proved largely ineffectual, something different has to be tried. If not an "incomes policy," then why not the appointment of a presidential commission to alert the public to inflationary wage and price increases, as advocated last week by George Romney, Sec-retary of Honsing and Urban

West led the diamond jack and the queen won in dummy. South cashed the ace and queen of spades and led to the king, discovering the bad news that West stopped the suit and there was no legitimate chance to make nine tricks.

He continued with the heart nine. If West had known the position he could have taken his ace, led the diamond ace and beaten the contract by two tricks. Not knowing, West ducked and South put up the queen in dummy. East's play of the six would have been correct from a doubleton six-three, so West was left in doubt about the heart distribution.

South turned his attention to clubs. He led the ace, leaving this position:

THE FACE OF THE THIRD REICH. Portraits of Nazi Leadership.

By Joachim C. Fest. Translated from the German by Mici Bullock. Pantheon. $10.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

REALIZED long ago that, despite all yows and efforts, I was never really going to swear off reading books about Nazi Germany. So I'm not really surprised at how easily really surprised at now easily I tolerated the somewhat Tell-tonic writing style and Germanic determination to underline every point in Josephin C. Fest's "The Face of the Third Reich." I can even understand why I was so unusually willing to put up with the inordinate amount of historical psycho-analyzing that Mr. Fest in-dulges in. But what my obsession with the subject does not quite explain is why I was willing to accept with a feeling almost amounting to gratitude the fact that I already knew what Mr. Fest goes to such multisyllable pains to demonstrate namely, that "the analysis of psychological elements in totalitarian forms of government, at least in the case of the leading National Socialists, is not ... a task for demonology; it is rather a question of describing concrete individual

Was I tolerant simply because Mr. Fest's descriptions of those "concrete individual failures" are so hypnotically interesting? That is certainly a large part of it. For by his approach of bringing together detailed por-traits of 18 leading Nazi figures, Mr. Fest has accomplished several important things.

First of all, he has pulled together in a single volume more details of the lives of his subjects than are included in any other one book that I can think of (and I most emphatically include William L. Shirer's "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich"). These details range from these concerning Hitler's relationships with women, through the question of Chief of Political Police Reinhard ("Blond Beast") Heydrich's Jewish ancestry and what its possible existence did to him, to specifics of Rudolf Hess's nervous breakdown, loss of memory, and attempted strickes following his sensational flight to England in 1941. Second, the device of focusing on one major figure. per chapter enables Mr. Fest to bring them to life as individuals and in contrast to each other as few other books on the subject have ever done. And third, by selecting representative figures and relating them to their backgrounds and roles in the Third Reich, Mr. Fest has painted a portrait that includes much more than 18 monstrous people. Thus, Hermann Göring is chosen to represent the nomideological revolutionaries that were attracted to Hitler; Franc von Papen stands for the conservative collaboration that naively allowed the Nazi takeover; and Rudolf Höss, the commandant of Auschwitz, becomes Mr. Fest's example of the party functionary who merely "followed orders." And so on, through the generals, the intellectuals, the artists the women of Germany. F figure is a window that open part of the dreadful lands: Still, the fascination of the portraits does not alone according tolerance. For in echapter, Mr. Pest works gradual way back to the so essential point—that these r were, in exquisitely forms, simply average failur neurotically twisted, who acting out their pedestrian intestes to the most extra limits managed to carry a wing nation over the brink A. that is the point that stri me as self-evident, as well adequately developed previou: Nor is the puzzle of simultaneous boredom and fas nation solved by the discovi that Mr. Fest is a journal whose book originated as series of radio broadcasts the psychological backgroud of the National Socialist regime for the benefit of listeners w. had requested them. "The Fa of the Third Reich" goes too f beyond its origins as popul enlightenment to be enjoy. merely as a series of penetra ing portraits. Mr. Fest has trito dig up the very bones of t. Nazi program and to suck to very marrow from the fu 20th-century totalitarian state There is of course that oth point that Mr. Fest was tryi:

to demonstrate as clinically possible that what happened Weimar Germany could ha pen to any society of men und the right circumstances. It's important point, but, again, i one that we already kne All the same, it's the point th' comes closer to explaining w I could sense that redundan in reading "The Face of t.".

read along in Mr. Fest's boy kept hearing tinny echq from the popular Americ culture of the 1940s: "Whis: while you work, Hitler is a jer Mussolini is a meanie..." "V der Fuehrer sez. Ve iss d-master race, Heil splat, H splat, right in der Foebre face"; and so on. You may r member. Gradually I realizthat, of course, it was American wartime propaganda th first assured my impressional generation that Nazi Germa was really only a collection misfits, no matter how much feared otherwise. But in t passage of time, we learned the it was only propagands, we dicarded it, and we threw out t truth with it. Benvenuti Stops Bethea In 8th to Retain Title

UMAG, Yugoslavia, May 24 (UPI).—Nino Benvennti retained his world middleweight title last night by knocking out Tom (The Bomb) Bethes in the eighth round of the first championship bout staged in a Communist country.

The 32-year-old Italian, defending his crown for the fourth consecutive time against an American, dropped Bethes for the count at 2:43 of the round with a hard right to the head. Bethea, who 90 days ago knocked out Benvennti in the eighth round of a non-title bout in Malbourne, tried to get up at seven but fall back to the canves of the outdoor ring in this Adriatic

Benyenuti scored with several left hooks and jabs that opened a tiny out over Bethea's right eye in the fourth, but the overall tempo was sluggish until nearly the and. Benvenuti and the Lumberton, N.C., challenger, each scaling the 160-pound (72,574-kilo) limit, fought before about 9,500 persons on a chilly night. The 25-year-old Bethes, who predicted a knockout victory in the eighth for himself, could not slip past Nino's stabbing left. He did fire in a few hard shots to the body and once connected with a joining left to the head, but Benvenuti was never hurt.

French referes Georges Gondre cautioned each man once for hitting in the clinch, but the fight was not marked by any of the savageness of Benvenuti's victory last November over Cuban-born Luis Rodriguez of Miami. Nino won that one on an 11th-round knockout.

Benyenuti thus ran his pro record to 81 victories in 86 fights. He drew once and lost four. It was the sixth defeat in 17 fights for Bethes. He has won ten and drawn one. It also was the fifth time in the last six fights that Bethea has lost. His record did not really merit a championship shothe is ranked no higher than seventh by any recognized organization—but his victory in March over Benyemut earned him

Bethea, after being knocked out in eighth round.

French Open Starts Today

PARIS. May 24.—The usual cast of professional net stars are boycotting the $100,000 French Open tennis championships, which start tomorrow, leaving the field wide open for a group of rising young amateurs.

The familiar cadre of big-name pros from Australia who roared into the final rounds of last year's tourney-champion Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall, Tony Roche and John Newcombe have not entered the tournament because of a dispute between their contract group and French tennis officials.

A young bunch of amateur stars from central Europe led by top-seeded lie Nastase of Romania fills four of the top ten seeding spots in this year's tournament. Nastase already has scored one major victory this year—the Italian championships in Rome, where he beat Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes in the final Kodes is seeded seventh here. Other seeded players from Eastern Europe are Zejlko Franulovic of Yugoslavia and Ion Tiriac

Nastase could face his toughest challenge from second-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif, if Smith's right arm is feeling better by tomorrow. If not, Smith has indicated he may with-draw from the tournament, leaving fourth-seeded Arthur Ashe as America's best hope. Ashe is seeking his second leg on the grand slam. He won the Australian Open earlier this year. But he is not at his best on the slow clay courts of Roland

Garros Stadium. Smith said today he would not play, but that he had not officially scratched. He added: "You can take it I shall not be playing." Smith said he was still troubled by a shoulder injury, which forced him out of the Monte Carlo and Rome

Opens last month. The women's singles seem likely to end in another confrontation between top-seeded Margaret Court of Australia and second-seeded Billie Jean King of the United States. Britain's Virginia Wade could upset their monopoly of the finals this season if she hits her best form.

Only one secded player, Françoise Durr of France, ranked sixth, should have any difficulty reaching the last eight. Miss Durr has a difficult draw. She meets American Peaches Bartkowicz in the first round, with the prospect of playing either Karen Krantzcke or Judy Dalton, both of Australia, in the third.

.The Levin Exhibition in Paris:.

From Bourgeois Beginnings to World Influence

By James Goldsborough PARIS.-Lenin Throughout the Ages might be the theme of the exhibition that has opened here to celebrate the centennial of Lenin's birth. The unusual display follows the hero of the October Revolution from his origins in a bourgeois household in Simbirsk up to today and the influence of Marxism-Leninism in some 60 Communist parties throughout the world. It took the centennial to pry some of these exhibits loose from the curators of Marxist-Lenist Institute in Moscow. A visitor to the Grand Palais here will find Lenin's watch, his pen, his suitcase, plus dozens of historical documents including decrees estab-lishing the Red Army, nationalizing industry, declaring the Rights of the Russian Peoples and setting up the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics,

Careful Editing

The exhibit is remarkably free of propaganda, though there has been some cautious editing. One looks closely for some picture or reference to Trotsky, Khrushchev or Mao Tse-tung, but finds little more than a signature resembling Trotsky's on the Red Army document.

But then it is a tribute to the life and work of the man, and not a testimony to the divisions within the movement. What did Lenin bring to the work of Marx and Engels? The answer is written anonymously on the wall:

"Lenin: Great thinker who harmoniously developed the science created by Mark and Engels, materialism, dialectic, economics, socialist revolutionsry theory and the construction of Communist society."

Instant Success

The exhibit has had an instant success here, though it, like almost anything in Paris that symbolizes either capitalist or Communist society, is continuously guarded by the French police. The inscriptions on the public guest hook pay great homage to the man, though here and there one finds a reference to Czechoslovakia, or Vietnam, or simply the word "peace," and the peace symbol.

The Russians have lent the French museum pictures, portraits, models, statues, docubooks and films of Lenin's life. The exhibit lasts until June 29. The emphasis is put on Lenin the family man, the thinker and the leader of men rather than Lenin the tough, non-compromising revolutionary who seized control of the October Revolntion, sent orders refusing all cooperation with Kerensky and signed the treaty of Brest-Litovsk in 1918.

He can be seen gently stroking a cat during one family scene in the film that is shown constantly for visitors.

The exhibit includes a letter written to Russia while he was in exile in Paris. He tells of finding a "chic" apartment at 24 Rue Beaunier, and writes that at 840 francs it was "expensive" for Paris, but nevertheless had four rooms plus

One Lenin quotation that is displayed prominently might well have been the Russians' attempt to tell the Chinese something: "We don't hold that Marxist doctrine is something intangible and fixed. On the contrary, we are convinced that Marx has only provided the cornerstone of the science, and that socialists must help it grow in all directions if they don't want to fail behind."

Another tells of his disenchantment during his long years of exile; "Well, here I am," he writes, "fighting one battle after another against political stupidity, platitudes, opportunism, etc., and it has been that way since 1893,"

Another document is de-scribed as the beginning of his autobiography. "I was born in Simbirsk (today called Ulya-novsk, his family name) on April 10, 1870," it begins simply.

the common language of commerce and tourism. It may tak a little time, though, as Hisast: Une indicates in a scholari article written for the AP las week. In an effort to discourage the practice of wearing slacks into its "plush and very formal dining room," says Und B leading Tokyo hotel has posted a discreet sign over the entrance warning that "A sports jacket may be worn, but no trousers." The menu of another hotel, in a game effor to conform with the inscrutable Western custom of calling a spade a long-handled digging instrument, advertises eggs as "extract of fowl."
